1. Introduction - Inglewood then and now

Located in the Loddon Shire and situated 199 km from Melbourne on the Calder Highway, Inglewood is an historic gold mining town presenting a vision of the past. Inglewood forms part of the famous 'Golden Triangle' which encompasses some of the richest alluvial goldfields in the world. Arral December de la matrice d

Inglewood is located in Jaara Country with the Dja Dja Wurrung the Traditional Owners. There are recollections of corroborees taking place just north of the current town in the late 1850s and early 1860s. These corroborees reputedly occurred every few months usually during a full moon. Evidence of the Dja Dja Wurrung inhabitation can still be seen today in scar trees and artefacts.

The Loddon River is located approximately 7kms to the east of Inglewood and is the only permanent flowing water with several seasonal and intermittent creeks and watercourses closer to the township.

Inglewood's surrounding landscape is relatively flat, with sedimentary mudstone, slates and sandstone. Harder metamorphic rocks and sandstones often protrude as clusters of rocky hills such as Rose Hill (235m) that contrast with the relatively flat surrounding landscape. Granite intrusions also occur and often appear as distinguished clusters of huge boulders which are interesting to explore and climb. Mount Kooyoora (475m) and Mount Korong (364m) are examples nearby. Gold-bearing quartz reefs lie within these ancient sediments and provided much of the gold found in this region. Soils are generally shallow and date back to the Ordovician era (430- 500 million years ago) when this area was covered by ocean.

Inglewood falls within the Goldfields Bioregion and is surrounded by Sandstone Ridge Shrubland Ecological Vegetation Class (EVC 93) dominated by mallee eucalypt species particularly Blue Mallee, (Eucalyptus polybractea), Green Mallee, (Eucalyptus viridis) and Bull Mallee, (Eucalyptus behriana). The main town area is located within the Grassy Woodland EVC (EVC 175) and Grassy Woodland / Alluvial Terraces Herb-rich Woodland Mosaic EVC (EVC 76).

Inglewood is located in what was the north-eastern corner of the Glenalbyn Run held by the Reverend William Hall of Kingower.

Gold was first discovered in 1859 by Alexander, Joseph and Thomas Thompson, (nephews of Hall), and Joseph Hanny. By January 1860 a new field a few miles south of the original was opened up by Potter, Irvine and McKean and dubbed "New Inglewood". This is the site of the present township.

By mid-1860 the population on the field was estimated to be greater than 40,000, ranking among the biggest rushes in Victoria's history. The population soon dwindled as the easily won alluvial deposits became exhausted but, as early as 1859, quartz reefs had been discovered which resulted in the permanent settlement of a few thousand miners and businessmen.

Initial returns from the quartz reefs were significant. From the Columbian, 22 tons of stone crushed gave a return of over 2300 ounces of gold, one of the richest patches of gold recorded in the colony of Victoria.

Numerous other reefs, including the Maxwell's, Jersey, March and Morning Star, gained renown for their rich yields.

In 1861 the town was proclaimed a municipality and in 1863 the Borough of Inglewood was established. Selfgovernment continued for 100 years until the borough was annexed to the Shire of Korong.

In December 1862 one of the most destructive fires recorded in the colony at that time occurred in the town's main street. Much of the commercial precinct was burned to the ground, with damages estimated at over £100,000. As a result of the fire a transition from bark and canvass establishments to more substantial brick and iron structures occurred, many of which remain today forming part of Inglewood's unique main street.

Around the turn of the 20th century, gold production began to wane, and a new form of employment came to the fore. The eucalyptus oil industry established when it was found the leaves of the Blue Mallee produces some of the best quality eucalyptus oil in the world. In the early 20th century Inglewood became the centre for eucalyptus oil production in Victoria. The Inglewood district still produces a major portion of Victoria's eucalyptus oil.

Today, Inglewood is a vibrant community. It is the demographic centre and main service town for the Loddon Shire, with its hospital, supermarket, chemist, service station, community bank, two schools, kindergarten and various retail outlets. The antique and vintage ware shops offer an opportunity for day trip outings, with the motel and caravan park offering longer accommodation options.

Sport plays a big part in the community with football, netball, tennis, lawn bowls, cricket, golf and horse riding popular.

Many and varied community groups operate mostly on a volunteer basis. These groups play a vital role in promoting and encouraging economic development and tourism as well as managing and maintaining the unique historic buildings and community assets. Many volunteer groups also provide services to the community such as communal meals, internet access and pre-school children's services.

2. Community planning background

History of community planning

This is the fifth stage in the development of the Inglewood Community Plan. The first was the Inglewood Urban Design Framework, which was begun in 2002 and completed in April 2003. The second stage took place in January and February 2004. The third stage took place in 2004 when further public discussion focused on the progress to date and for further development and consolidation. Stage four was a public meeting held in 2008 which led to the development of the Inglewood Community Plan 2010.

The Inglewood community is proud of the many achievements made, an outcome of collaborative and combined efforts of many, benefiting the community in a number of ways. Some of the successful initiatives include:

- Eucalyptus Distillery Museum. Formally opened in 2011. A Loddon Shire appointed Section 65 committee manages the site and ongoing development and provides for tours and the establishment of the retail area operation.
- Arts park development (right)
- Public drinking fountain 2013 (right)
- Community Hub participation with the community hub feasibility development activities and the Community Planning submission (below right)
- Inglewood Railway Station Redevelopment
- Adventure park at sports precinct
- Industrial Park development

Tourism & Marketing

4. Developing our plan

Note – the early development stages of the Inglewood Community Plan was conducted during Covid-19 restrictions and was mostly done via online meetings and emails. The Loddon Shire Council's Community Planning Officer left the role in October 2020 with the position not filled during this critical early planning stage.

The IDTC held two 'Plan the Plan' meetings on 13 August 2020 and again on 1st October 2020.

At the August meeting the group reviewed the previous Community Plan to discuss what went well, what didn't go well, what was achieved and improvements that could be made. Discussions of how the new plan would be developed were discussed and what the best way to gather information would be given Victoria was in lockdown due to Covid-19. It was resolved to

- Seek feedback through online surveys and hard copy surveys using the same questions for each. The online survey was conducted via the SurveyMonkey platform and the hard copy was distributed to Inglewood households with the Korong Newsletter mail out in September 2020. Residents were able to return their hard copy surveys to the Inglewood Post Office for not cost. Both surveys closed on September 17th.
- Emails were sent to community groups to promote through their networks.
- The surveys were promoted on the IDTC Facebook page and in the Korong Newsletter. Posters were put up around Inglewood in high foot traffic areas (i.e. IGA noticeboard, Brooke Street noticeboards and Post Office notice board).
- Five online forums were held.

At the October meeting the results of the surveys were reviewed. There were

- 27 hard copy surveys returned
- 7 online surveys completed
- 6 attendees to the online forums

The IDTC considered this to be quite successful engagement considering the restrictive environment of the time. Feedback from members who had been involved in the development of the previous plan indicated it was better engagement than for when the previous plan was developed. The surveys offered responders the opportunity to have an IDTC member call them to discuss their comments further. A total of five phone calls were made to follow up survey comments.

The surveys returned over 100 suggestions from the community. All age groups were represented, with the over 50 age group the most responsive.

All the suggestions were collated and put together in this plan.

The Inglewood Streetscape Masterplan (the Streetscape) was developed in 2016. It was a joint venture by Loddon Shire Council and Outlines and again was developed in consultation with the community with their visions of Brooke Street. However, this was not well supported beyond the IDTC and mostly forgotten about.
